Expand Your Market in Two Untapped Yet Growing Economies

Azerbaijan, with a GDP of $40.75 billion, is a country on the move with countless opportunities for business. Despite fluctuating commodity prices, the country's long-term growth prospects continue to be bright due to its large oil and gas resources. In addition to oil and gas, Azerbaijan is intensifying efforts to diversify its economy in some key sectors like agriculture, IT, infrastructure, transportation and tourism. Additionally, chemical/petrochemical industry, food industry, aviation/aerospace, healthcare and pharmaceutical industry, banking and finance are other very promising sectors.

Georgia, with a GDP of 15.16 billion, has many trade agreements in place that provide opportunities for companies to access not only the country's 4.4 million residents, but the wider region without or with limited customs tariffs. Being located on the historical Silk Road also makes Georgia an attractive transit country for transportation of goods between Europe and Central Asia. The Georgian government has identified energy, tourism, technology, manufacturing, logistics, agriculture and food processing as key sectors for the country's economic growth.

Why Join These Trade Missions?

U.S. companies can participate in both stops or one. But while traveling to the region from the U.S., it might be worthwhile to visit both countries to:

- explore these markets for new business opportunities,
- meet with pre-screened distributors, customers and business partners,
- meet with government officials to learn about upcoming infrastructure projects, and
- network with key business people and U.S. companies on the ground at Ambassadors' receptions and luncheons/dinners
